

The diagram is a central white circle with eight lines radiating outwards to blue rectangular boxes. Each blue box is connected to a set of handwriting lines: a top blue line, a middle dashed line, and a bottom yellow line. A red vertical bar is at the end of each line set. There are also empty white boxes for writing at the end of each line set. The layout is as follows:

- Top: One blue box connected to a set of handwriting lines with an empty white box to its right.
- Left side: Three blue boxes, each connected to a set of handwriting lines with an empty white box to its left.
- Right side: Three blue boxes, each connected to a set of handwriting lines with an empty white box to its right.
- Bottom: One blue box connected to a set of handwriting lines with an empty white box to its left.
